PROFILE

Niels Christian Døcker advises businesses on intellectual property law, commercial contracts, corporate law, and aviation regulation. Niels Christian is specialized in intellectual property law, with a particular focus on trademarks and copyright. He assists Danish and international companies in developing trademark strategies, drafting and negotiating license and royalty agreements, and handling IP-related disputes and litigation. His advice is grounded in a commercial understanding of how IP rights create value and protection for the business.

He also has extensive experience in corporate law, including the negotiation and drafting of distribution agreements and other commercial contracts. Niels Christian has advised on numerous corporate transactions, including responsibility for due diligence processes with a focus on competition law, as well as executive-level negotiations leading up to closing.

Finally, Niels Christian is a specialist in EU Regulation 261/2004 on air passenger rights and has, for several years, represented major international airlines in compensation claims related to delays and cancellations. His approach is solution-oriented and pragmatic. Clients receive legal advice that balances business considerations with legal requirements - focused on practical solutions rather than theoretical answers.
